

QTS Architects Residential Design: a Selection of Work

Background information on QTS Architects

QTS Architects have worked on a wide range of projects, from residential to multimillion dollar international projects, our focus being predominantly, but not exclusively, on the hotel and tourism industry.

The Oubaai Boutique Hotel has just been awarded the World Luxury Hotel Award for Best Luxury Golf Resort for 2012. QTS has also won an Award of Merit in 1985 from South African Institute of Architects for the Berg & Dal Rest Camp, Kruger National Park.

At QTS we do not have a specific signature design style - we believe that architecture should be driven by a design language that is formalistically and stylistically less predictable. In a world of mass production and trend we prefer that each design project generates its own style and planning response to the varying factors of client brief, context (both geographic & social) and economy. It is more important that the creation of human friendly and legible spaces contribute to the positive experience of a building for the end user.

This is only one aspect of a building however and central to all good design, is also cost, space and energy efficient design solutions. It is this well balanced design product that QTS Architects strive to achieve for each project. We have grown our project repertoire in the last couple of years to also include residential, certainly the most involved and satisfying of project types.

Our most recent residential projects are represented here. Please feel free to visit our company web page (QTSarchitects.com) where more detailed residential and other project listings may be found.

Stillbosch Estate Concept house Design

The Stillbosch Estate concept house: nestled effortlessly within its surroundings ensuring privacy yet also capitalizing on the luxuries of open space and views that the Stillbosch Estate provides.

The house is arranged around a central entertainment space with all of the living rooms and bedrooms arranged to take advantage of the views, a seamless transition from internal spaces to the picturesque landscape – outdoor living at its best.

Large overhangs and planted roofs ensure that the house is comfortable to live in while blending sensitively with its environment.
